Session description

Logistics activities are nowadays the backbone of the modern lifestyle, where products from all over the world are made available almost everywhere with relatively insignificant cost.

As any active field, logistics has been subject to considerable advances and progress in both theoretical and practical levels. Actually, recent years have seen multiple efforts aiming to push forward supply chain management, due to the fierce competition, the environmental constraints as well as the innovation in IT fields. These advances, such as physical internet, smart packaging and container (to mention only few), urge supply chain management activities to upgrade, adapt and rethink their operating mode.

This special session is opened for contributions dealing with the latest advances in modern supply chains trends and challenges. Accepted and presented papers will be published in the conference proceedings, submitted to IEEE Xplore and indexed in Scopus & Thomson Reuters.

The topics of interest include, but are not limited to:

- Smart packaging
- Physical internet
- Information technology dedicated to supply chain management
- Innovative transportation strategies
- Advances in sustainable supply chain
